DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Fraleley et al USPN 6,263,492.

Regarding claims 1 and 4-16

Fraleley et al teaches, creating an automation solution using an engineering system by using automation objects (figure 6, column 9, lines 7-24)

connecting an output of an automation object to an input of an another automation object, an interconnection for a data source administering a reference to the corresponding output of an automation module, and an interconnection for a data sink administering a reference to the corresponding input of an automation module (figures 3-8, 11, column 7, lines 51-67, column 9, lines 42-53); and assigning, after creating an automation objects to physical equipment units of a system, wherein interconnections represent intra-equipment unit communication relationships and wherein communications relationships within an equipment unit is only determined as a result of the assigning (column 10, lines 14-37).

Regarding claims 4-16

Rejection of claim 1 is incorporated and further claims 4-16 recites similar limitations as in claim 1, therefore, claims 4-16 are rejected under same rational as claim 1.

Regarding claim 2, 18 and 20

Fraley et al teaches,

The interconnections are assignable with quality of service wherein specific properties which are to be fulfilled are definable for the communication relationship (figures 5, 7, column 1, lines 15-50).

Regarding claim 3

Fraley et al teaches,

A projected automated solution is downloadable into the system the download being carried out for each equipment unit representative in the projection environment and wherein each equipment representative is able to communicate with the physical equipment unit in the system via a communication link (column 1, lines 60-65, column 2, lines 7-16 and column 7, lines 5-24).

Art Unit: 2124

Regarding claims 17 and 19

Fraley et al teaches,

Each equipment unit establishes only the communication relationship in which function as a sink (column 8, lines 55-60)
